

Womack H. Rucker, Jr.
Vice President, Corporate Relations

Womack Rucker, Jr., has served as vice president of Adventist Health System since 1990. He previously served as vice president of health services for Meharry Medical College and chief executive officer of Meharry Hubbard Hospital, both in Nashville, Tennessee.

His administrative career began at Kettering Medical Center in Kettering, Ohio, where he served as assistant director of personnel and administrative assistant to the president. He later served as vice president of Washington Adventist Hospital in Takoma Park, Maryland and president of Riverside Adventist Hospital in Nashville, Tennessee.

Rucker received his master's degree in hospital and health administration from Xavier University and completed an administrative residency at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland. He also completed the Crummer School of Business Management Program at Rollins College. Rucker is a Fellow in the American College of Healthcare Executives (FACHE).

He is an international consultant and conducts seminars both nationally and internationally on guest relations topics with emphasis on customer loyalty.